Kim Mansfield started her career at a West End Law Firm which specialised in advising high-profile individuals. Kim later joined a prestigious Law Firm in the East End of London, working closely with one of the Partners of the Firm.

Kim then moved to Essex where she joined Davies and Fraser, assisting a Family lawyer with his caseload including attending court hearings, client meetings and dealing with extremely vulnerable and emotional clients. Kim joined Sanders Witherspoon in 2001 where she practised until 2014 when she joined Legal 500 firm, Palmers.

It was there where Kim was accepted as a Fellow of the Institute of Paralegals, Tier 4, and was recognised for her care and compassion towards clients, especially those who had suffered from emotional trauma. During this time Kim gained extensive experience in Domestic Abuse and Complex Child Cases.

Kim joined Pinney Talfourd in July 2023 as an Associate in the family team. She is based in the Upminster office.

Notable Family cases

Kim represented a mother who wanted to relocate to the USA. The parties were not married but the father had Parental Responsibility. The matter went to a full contested hearing and the court agreed mother could remove the child from the jurisdiction with conditions that contact took place face to face twice a year in either UK or the USA.

Kim represented an American father when their Polish mother made an application to remove the children from the jurisdiction which the Court refused.

Kim represented a father in an application for Parental Responsibility for his baby daughter who was six months old. The mother could not cope with the baby and after several visits to the hospital, the father made an urgent application to the court for a Live With Order. Due to the baby's injuries and lack of assistance from social services, the court granted an interim live with order to the father and supervised contact with mother.

Kim has represented a woman in a serious domestic abuse case where a controlling husband breached a Non-Molestation order which was put in place to protect both the wife and two children. Following repeated breaches from the husband, an application to commit to prison was successfully made. Divorce proceedings were issued and finalised and the wife managed to retain the family home.
